

Andrea Meyer has been the Legislative Director of the ACLU of Oregon since 1999. During the Oregon legislative session, she monitors hundreds of legislative proposals on civil liberties issues including privacy, reproductive rights, free speech, GLBT issues, religious freedom, and criminal justice, to name a few. Andrea also handles all aspects of initiative petition and ballot measure campaign work. In 2001, Andrea was appointed as the privacy representative on the Advisory Committee on Genetic Privacy and Research where she continues to serve. Prior to joining the ACLU, after graduating from law school, Andrea clerked for US Magistrate Janice Stewart and then practiced at a small civil litigation law firm in Portland.
